

COOPER CARE BASKETS

Benefitting Childhood Cancer Patients of Cook Children's Hospital in Fort Worth, Texas

February 20, 2015 Cooper Max was taken to Cook's Children's because something wasn't quite right. That "something" was later diagnosed as an extra renal rhabdoid tumor. The world stopped that day for the Max family. A bed was assigned, chemo was started immediately, they were told to settle in. This was their new life, this was their new home. As you can imagine, they were completely unprepared. The Cooper Max Foundation is committed to helping other families facing the same situation.

What we do:

Deliver a laundry basket full of comforts and necessities to families of children diagnosed with cancer at Cook Children's Hospital in Fort Worth. On average, we deliver 15-20 baskets a month.

All done in memory of Cooper Craig Max. Cooper fought bravely through 14 rounds of chemo and 37 rounds of radiation. The disease came back just 3 short months after his last treatment, and Cooper lost his life after a struggle with fluid in his lungs caused by the tumor. He was 4 years old. He was a beloved son, adored brother, and best pal to all that knew him. We will never stop fighting for Coop.
